Rep. votes 'no' on bill to freeze Common Core
 Risk of returning to No Child Left Behind too high

BY KYLE CHAMBERS
 WYOMING CITY

The House Education Committee passed a bill today that would freeze the Common Core State Standards, but the measure failed to pass the full House.

The bill, H.R. 1585, was introduced by Rep. Lou Gohmert (R-Texas) and passed the committee by a 10-7 vote. It would prohibit the federal government from using any of the money it collects from states to pay for the development or implementation of the Common Core State Standards.

The bill also would prohibit the federal government from using any of the money it collects from states to pay for the development or implementation of the Common Core State Standards.

Be Liberal group begins training process
 Communities either grow or die, says activist

 WYOMING CITY

The Liberal Party of Wyoming is beginning a training process for its members, according to a spokesman. The group, which was founded in 2008, is focused on promoting the interests of Wyoming's rural communities.

John H. Hines, the party's executive director, said the training will focus on how to effectively communicate with the media and how to organize a campaign. He said the party is currently recruiting members and is looking for people who are interested in the party's mission.

The party's website, liberalpartywy.com, lists the party's platform, which includes opposing the federal government's involvement in the states' education system and opposing the federal government's involvement in the states' health care system.

Technology gives birth to virtual schooling

BY KYLE CHAMBERS
 WYOMING CITY

The 2013 Kansas Education Summit is kicking off today in Topeka, Kan., with a focus on virtual schooling. The summit, which is being held at the Topeka Convention Center, is the largest education conference in the state.

The summit is being organized by the Kansas Education Association and the Kansas State Board of Education. It will feature a variety of speakers and sessions, including a keynote address by Gov. Sam Brownback.

Virtual schooling is a topic that has gained a lot of attention in recent years. It involves using technology to deliver instruction to students who are not in a traditional classroom. This can be done through video conferencing, online learning management systems, and other technologies.

Trampoline takes off over houses, ends up in tree

BY KYLE CHAMBERS
 WYOMING CITY

A trampoline that was being used in a residential neighborhood in Wyoming City has taken a wild ride today. The trampoline, which was being used by a group of children, was launched into the air and landed in a tree.

The incident occurred in the afternoon. A group of children were playing on the trampoline, which was set up in the backyard of a house. One of the children jumped too high, and the trampoline was launched into the air.

The trampoline landed in a large tree in the neighborhood. The tree is located in the backyard of a house that is adjacent to the house where the trampoline was set up.

The incident has caused a bit of a stir in the neighborhood. The children who were playing on the trampoline are now being scolded by their parents for causing the incident.
