Commission split on leadership

Harrison chosen mayor on 3-2 vote, Denoyer declines vice-mayor nomination

by ROBERT PRICE
• Leader & Times

Two new commissioners took their seats on the Liberal City Commission Monday, and the current commissioners took over leadership roles on the board.

The board members Dave Harrison and Jon Denoyer were reconstituted for mayor. Harrison's reconstitution was recorded, but Denoyer's deal was not recorded. Denoyer was reconstituted by a vote on the Harrison nomination, and he's a narrow 3-2 vote. Harrison was elected on the same ballot. Denoyer and new commissioner and former mayor Jon Wilson were elected to Harrison's reconstitution, while Harrison, along with current commissioner Lauri Williams and new commissioner Chris Gaugen, voted in favor of the nomination.

Though Denoyer received 200 more votes than Harrison and received the most votes out of eight candidates, the majority selected Harrison as mayor.

The board then looked to reconstitute a vice mayor. Williams was the first nomination. Denoyer was also reconstituted for the position, but Denoyer said he was not quite ability for the reconstitution. The commission voted unanimously to make Williams the vice mayor.

The vice mayor has a lesser spoke about their new position during the Arnie Ross commissioners' position of Saturday's meeting. Williams gave prizes to outgoing commissioner Lauri Stockdale and outgoing mayor Tom Lang, while

The National Resources Conservation Service, a part of the United States Department Agriculture, conducted a tour Saturday, informing participants about the ways of the Farm Bill Conservation to help conserve water and other resources.

The tour was to delineate parts of Sorrel Farms Inc. Conservation Service, and the programs the NRCS has to offer NRCS is a voluntary program established to help farmers and ranchers with sustainable grazing, which can cover a wide range of resources, to wildlife, and water conservation.

The tour showed how NRCS is on helping the farmers to properly rotate the old and fallow land, and how to decrease wind and water erosion of the pasture, currently affected.

The tour stop, showed how some farmers are changing to the Farm Bill Conservation, especially crops, like tomatoes and other produce.

Following the tour, the tour formed Trees Forest Inc. from a long hole, from the NRCS
