January 7, 2014

Tuesday, 07 January 2014 12:41

Some people are only alive because it is illegal to shoot them.
Thursday Prime Rib
44 Village Plaza • Liberal, KS • 620-626-6400 Monday - Saturday
BILLY'S BLUE BUCK BBQ VOTED ANGELLO'S BEST RESTAURANT & TRADE STRAIGHT!

LINENBROKER

County names Linenbroker chair, Wettstein vice-chair

By ROBERT FIELD
• Leader & Times

The Seward County Commission's leadership changed slightly Monday night.

After commission chairman Dale Linenbroker, who was unopposed for a seat on the board, commissioner Jim Rice nominated her for the position with Wettstein as the vice-chairman nominee. After commissioner Randy Blake moved the nomination cease, the board then voted unanimously to allow Linenbroker to remain chairman.

Linenbroker then called for nominations for the vice chairman position on the board. Wettstein was nominated by commissioner Jim Rice and held by commissioner Doug LaFaver.

All members unanimously the motion, and Blake moved that nomination cease. The commission voted unanimously to make Wettstein the vice chairman.

Later in the meeting, commissioners

See COUNTY/Page 3

WETTSTEIN

Pancake Day Talent Show prelims set for Feb. 1

Area residents invited to enter

Page 3

City mulls building, zoning boards

By ISABELLE MARCINDO
• Leader & Times

Liberal City Commissioner Ron Warren presented his idea for a Housing Advisory Board and a Building Trends Board at a city commission meeting in October of 2013.

Warren said the idea for the boards came from a meeting that Warren traveled to by some direction in the making of

See BOARDS/Page 3

TUESDAY JANUARY 7, 2014
LEADER & TIMES
Your daily news & views for 127 years

Making the grade will change

By NICOLE COLEMAN
• Leader & Times

The Kansas State Board of Education will soon change how it measures the success of students and schools, with a new set of standards more than will affect USD 480. One certainty it will be quite different than the standards measures that have dominated schools in the past 25 years.

But was the news delivered by deputy superintendent of schools Bruce Hickert and director of data and testing Jill Stoner at the USD 480 board of education meeting on Monday night.

Cheerleaders and Jesses were held what is called QPS — Quality Performance Schools — in the middle school gymnasium twice going in the morning to a new program. Hickert said "It's the Five R's."

The Five R's are rigor, relevance, relationships, relevant culture and results. Over a five-year period, districts will be

See USD 480/Page 3

Rep. Petty appointed to Transportation and Public Safety Budget Committee

By LARRY HOLLON
• Special to the Leader & Times

State Representative Ruth Petty was appointed Monday to the Transportation and Public Safety Budget Committee by House Speaker Mike Hubbard. Hubbard also appointed Mark Hutchins and Marvin Smith to the Kansas House of Representatives.

Rep. Petty has done my excellent job in the House, and I know she will do a great job as member of Transportation and Public Safety Budget, an area of state government that is very relevant and important to the people of the 125th District," Hubbard said.

With several congressional races had to be changed to

See PETTY/Page 3

PETTY

$50,000 reward yields no clues in missing boy case

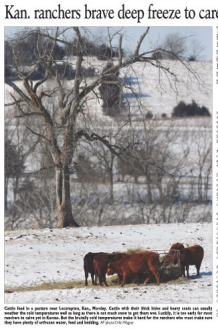
WICHITA (AP) — A $50,000 reward has yielded no new information about a southeast Kansas boy who has been missing since 1998.

An anonymous donor put up the reward in hopes of finding 7-year-old Jesse Hoeman, who was last seen at his family's home in Towanda.

The Wichita Eagle reported the Butler County Sheriff's Office has received about 50 tips since the reward was announced. A Florida man and a Texas woman claiming to be Jesse Hoeman had called and some of those calls brought no new clues to the case.

Jesse Hoeman was last seen in the entry foyer home. His disappearance was not reported until 2008, when Jesse's mother contacted law enforcement. The parents were divorced at the time of Jesse's disappearance. Jesse was about three when children would be taken every

Kan. ranchers brave deep freeze to care for cattle



Cattle feed in a pasture near Lacrosse, Kan., Monday. Cattle with their thick hides and heavy coats can usually weather the cold temperatures well as long as there is not much snow to get them wet. Luckily, it is not easily for most ranchers to get their cattle out of the cold. Ranchers are also concerned about feed for the ranchers who must make sure they have plenty of software water, food and bedding. AP photo/Nick Wagner

The coldest places in Kansas on Sunday night into early Monday morning were in Garden City and Centerwood Falls where the temperatures dipped to a minus 12 degrees

By JOANNA SEGERSON
• Associated Press

WICHITA — Kansas cattle rancher Debbie Lyons-Hicks actually enjoyed Monday when the temperature dipped to a minus twenty-one, because it meant she would have extra help on the family farm. Lyons-Hicks and her husband transportation.

The kids are pretty excited about it, Lyons-Hicks said, with her son driving by the 70 during video games "do not." They are outside playing in the snow.

High school senior Tyler and Jim Hicks, both 18, was helping her mother and stepfather feed the snow so the animals would have a warm place to lay down. They get ready to go to bed, she said, and Tyler Hicks, who was home from college

Temperatures at the farm dipped to minus 9 degrees overnight, cold enough to freeze even some of the water troughs. Lyons-Hicks said the cattle have fresh water to drink they can survive, even if it is very cold water. Lyons-Hicks said, Cattle have thick hides and heavy coats to protect them from the cold particularly when there is not much snow on the ground to get them wet.

Lyons-Hicks said she and her son, the family chore this year to make sure there is a hole where their water is. Lyons-Hicks said the water in their horses' stocks troughs, the horse stocks kits of tiger stocks, is frozen. She said she fixed by poor cutting Jagdon buckets of hot water.

Lyons-Hicks has endorsed the responsibilities to the farm. Tyler Hicks said, telling that her children

See FREEZE/Page 3

Vol. 128 • Iss. 287 • 18 Pages

Happy Birthday, Jim Stoddard!

Liberal, Kansas