In the Girl Scouts of Kansas Heartland Council, Girl Scouts celebrated Earth Day by taking action in their own communities. Girl Scout Troop No. 60005 met Saturday at the Liberal Garden Center to learn about plants and have already put their new knowledge to use. With the help of Liberal Garden Center staff members, the girls picked out the best plants to use for an Earth Day community service project Monday at the Coronado Museum and Dorothy's House in Liberal. They now have beautiful, new flowers greeting visitors. "The girls had a lot of fun, and it felt good to make a difference for Earth Day," said Girl Scout leader Michele Stoddard. "This is just one of the community service projects this troop has done with their cookie sale profits. Thanks to all who bought cookies to help us make a difference in our community."
