"With all your help and every woman that did the little finger stitching and gave up her time and talent to help with this, we have raised $1,000," Anderson said. "We are going to be getting a lot of material." Quilts were on display at First National Bank from April 9 through 27. Those viewing the quilts were encouraged to make donations for the Fire Pup Program. "Wow, that is incredible," Poulton said. "I think a little of 1,700 kids throughout the school district received booklets. Thank you, I appreciate that." Daily Leader photos/Jessica Crawford
