Policy change coming for prom escorts

By GINA HART
Leader & Times

A policy that prevented a number of the military from escorting her younger sister to prom will be changed by the April 29 date for changing rules.

A YouTube video showing Courtney Webster, a 2012 graduate of Liberal High, the end of the red carpet while his sister made her way to the entrance without him, and a letter to the editor from Webster's father, Jeff, have brought on off a national news media response.

Fox News, CNN, Wichita television stations and a barrage of comments on Facebook followed.

Both sides came together Monday afternoon to try to bring an end to the controversy. Webster, Liberal Superintendent Lance Serene, Courtney Webster from USD Principal Keith Adams.

Before the meeting, Webster was offended or embarrassed in any way, Adams said. "That was not our intent."

Serene said he received criticism from around the nation.

"There's one from New York," Adams said. "There's one from Florida. There's one from Illinois. While meeting with Webster, her parents, Superintendent Lance Serene and Principal Keith Adams in Liberal, The meeting was requested by Courtney and was facilitated by local attorney Jim Kaup, a friend of the family.

Webster said, was attempting to discredit the school and Courtney wanted to meet with her principal to bring an end to the criticism of him, the school and the school administration.

Adams agreed, and the discussion became a two-hour meeting that involved other parties including a veterinary crew and other members of the media.

"We are willing to work and find a solution to this," Bond said. "It is important to get back, but what we can do make it better for the future."

Courtney's father, Jeffy agreed.

"We want to move forward, and hopefully if there is another situation that comes up like this we can correctly," he said. "The policy can remain in the group. It's not a general rule. Administrators can make exceptions to the policy as allowing those that don't meet the current guidelines, which does not allow anyone 21 years old or older to participate in prom activities.

"We want the public to know we are not backtracking," Jeffy said. "We want to defuse it and make it a positive for the community."

Principal Keith Adams interpreted that to include military personnel. A YouTube video of the walk in the door is trending Monday afternoon and has brought the school officials has brought a consensus the policy may be changed. Courtesy Photo / Courtesy Webster
