County looks to repair portions of courthouse roof

Seward County

By ROBBY PRICE
• Leader & Times

A portion of the roof at the Seward County Courthouse could be getting a new look soon.

The county received a bid recently from Lone Wolves Roofing and two out of town vendors to replace the roof at the south area of the courthouse. Tony White of White's Roofing, who attended the county commission at its Feb. 4 meeting to discuss issues with the roof, Commissioners then directed Public Works Director Jay Eaton to meet with White and the maintenance department to look over the recommendations for repairing the roof.

That group later met, and a representative from Lone Construction was asked to be present at tonight's commission meeting to offer his recommendations.

Commissioners also gave consensus to commissioner Jim Rice to meet with White and the maintenance department to look over recommendations for repairing the roof.
