The quilt that came home

Liberal nation remembers on local artifact
The women stitched each star by hand, piecing printed diamonds into an orderly geometric pattern. Some colors, they chose the differently hand-drawn, some printed, some intense. Finally they added their names. Yet as all embroidered in color they did not get together. It was a quilt that came home. The quilt is a symbol of the community's resilience and the strength of its women. It is a testament to the power of tradition and the importance of family and community.
