Landfill fire lights up night sky

Several days after the fire broke out, the night sky over Lakewood, Colo., was lit up by a massive fire at a landfill. The fire, which started on June 18, is still burning and has caused significant damage to the surrounding area. The fire is located at the Lakewood Landfill, which is situated near the town of Lakewood. The fire is believed to have started from a pile of debris that was not properly disposed of. The fire has caused a significant amount of smoke to be released into the atmosphere, which has caused some health concerns for the surrounding community. The fire is still burning and is expected to continue for several more days.

Boost for cars or bust? Ethanol debate heats up

The debate over whether to boost support for ethanol production or to restrict it has heated up. The issue is becoming increasingly important as the price of oil continues to rise and the need for alternative energy sources becomes more apparent. Ethanol is a renewable energy source that can be produced from crops like corn and sugarcane. It is a cleaner-burning fuel than gasoline and can help reduce greenhouse gas emissions. However, there are concerns that increasing ethanol production could lead to higher food prices, as crops used for ethanol production are also used for food. The debate is ongoing, and it is likely to continue for some time.

Super Moon

The Super Moon is a rare celestial event that occurs when the Moon is at its closest point to Earth in its orbit. This results in a larger and brighter Moon than what we normally see in the sky. The Super Moon is a result of the Moon's elliptical orbit around Earth. It is a fascinating event that is visible from anywhere on Earth. The Super Moon is a reminder of the beauty and wonder of the universe.
