Plans for wind farm put on hold

Plans for a wind farm in the Bow Valley region have been put on hold. The project, which was to be developed by a private company, has been delayed due to a lack of funding. The company has been unable to secure the necessary investment to move forward with the project. The wind farm was expected to generate significant revenue for the region and create jobs. The delay is a setback for the region's efforts to diversify its economy and reduce its reliance on fossil fuels.
