Survey says community cares most about security, safety

Public opinion polls have shown that Americans are most concerned about national security and safety, according to a new survey by the Pew Research Center. The survey, which was conducted from June 10 to June 17, 2013, found that 63 percent of Americans are most concerned about national security, followed by the economy (53 percent), terrorism (49 percent), and the environment (47 percent).
