Local residents reflect on King's Dream 50 years ago

By David Cooper
50 years ago, in a speech that has since become a cornerstone of American civil rights history, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. declared that his dream was to see a nation where people would not be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character. In San Antonio, that dream is being revisited as the city prepares to dedicate a large-scale sculpture of King in the heart of downtown.
