Judge: Oklahoma can sue government for Obamacare

Change: Two
 A federal judge on the state of Oklahoma has ruled that the state can sue the federal government to challenge the Affordable Care Act, also known as Obamacare. The judge, Judge David B. Senturia, ruled in favor of the state's lawsuit, which was filed in federal court in Tulsa. The ruling is a significant victory for the state, as it allows Oklahoma to challenge the constitutionality of the law. The state's attorneys general, Scott Pruitt and G. B. Norton, have both expressed their support for the lawsuit. The ruling is expected to lead to a full trial on the merits of the case. The state's attorneys general have also announced that they will appeal the ruling to the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals. The 10th Circuit is the federal appeals court for Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, and parts of Colorado, Missouri, and South Dakota. The 10th Circuit has a history of being a conservative-leaning court, and the ruling is expected to be a major test case for the constitutionality of Obamacare. The state's attorneys general have also announced that they will seek a stay of the ruling until the 10th Circuit has heard the appeal. The stay is expected to be granted, which will delay the trial until after the appeal has been heard.
