Parent questions why board not enforcing policy
By NICKI CLONING
A parent of a child at the University of Kansas School of Business is questioning why the board of trustees is not enforcing a policy that requires all students to be vaccinated against measles, mumps and rubella (MMR). The parent, who is a member of the board, says that the board has been aware of the policy for several years but has not taken any action to enforce it. The parent says that the board's inaction is putting the health of the students at risk and is a violation of the board's duty to protect the students. The board has responded by saying that it is currently reviewing the policy and will take action if necessary.

Kan. Lt. gov.: New exchange not competitive enough
By NICKI CLONING
The Kansas Department of Transportation (KDOT) is not doing enough to improve the state's highway system, Kansas Lt. Governor Matt Denno says. Denno says that the state's current highway program is not competitive enough to attract federal funding and that the state needs to do more to improve its infrastructure. Denno says that the state needs to invest more in its roads and bridges and that it needs to improve its transportation planning process. Denno says that the state needs to be more proactive in addressing its transportation needs and that it needs to be more transparent in its decision-making process.

Camera takes dramatic shot of eagle attack
By NICKI CLONING
A dramatic shot of an eagle attacking a deer was captured by a camera at the Lawrence State Museum. The camera was set up to monitor the deer and the eagle, and it captured the eagle attacking the deer's neck. The eagle was seen tearing at the deer's neck and the deer was seen running away. The camera was set up by a volunteer at the museum and the shot was captured on video. The video shows the eagle attacking the deer and the deer running away.
