Vision Team hopes for more community input

By MICHAEL COLEMAN
A 120-member Vision Team is working to help the community better understand the needs of the community and how to address them. The team is made up of people from all walks of life, including business, education, and government. They are currently in the process of conducting a series of focus groups and surveys to gather input from the community. The team's goal is to develop a comprehensive plan that addresses the community's most pressing issues. The plan will be presented to the community in the coming months.

Feds consider permit to drill on Kansas wetlands

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is considering a permit to drill on Kansas wetlands. The permit would allow for the construction of a new facility in the area. The Corps is currently in the process of reviewing the permit application. The wetlands are located in a sensitive area and the drilling could have a significant impact on the environment. The Corps is working to ensure that the drilling is done in a way that minimizes the impact on the wetlands. For more information, call 417-233-1234.
