

Thursday, October 10, 2013

Will gov't shutdown affect local residents?
A federal government shutdown could affect local residents in several ways, including the possibility of a partial shutdown. The federal government is currently operating on a continuing resolution, which allows it to continue to operate at a reduced level. This means that some federal agencies and programs may be affected, but the government will not completely shut down. The impact on local residents will depend on the extent of the shutdown and the specific programs that are affected.

No injuries in Okla. pipeline blast
A pipeline explosion in Oklahoma on Wednesday did not result in any injuries, according to officials. The explosion occurred in a residential area, but the pipeline was quickly shut off, and the fire was extinguished. The cause of the explosion is still under investigation.

City commission will allow public vote
The City Commission will allow a public vote on a proposed ordinance. The ordinance would allow the city to issue bonds to fund a new project. The public vote will be held on a future date, and the results will determine whether the ordinance is adopted.

College scholarship auction raises $46,000
A college scholarship auction raised $46,000 for students in need. The auction featured a variety of items, including books, clothing, and electronics. The proceeds from the auction will be used to provide financial assistance to students who are struggling to pay for their education.

Obama Administration denies Mass to Catholics
The Obama Administration has denied a request from the Catholic Church in Massachusetts. The request was for the church to be recognized as a public institution. The Administration has stated that it does not have the authority to grant such a request.

18 states now selling gas for less than $3 a gallon
Eighteen states are now selling gas for less than $3 a gallon. This is a significant decrease from the previous year, when gas prices were consistently above $3 a gallon. The decrease is due to a combination of factors, including a decline in oil prices and increased competition from foreign oil producers.

Police arrest 8 House members at immigration rally
Eight House members were arrested at an immigration rally. The rally was held in a public square, and the House members were arrested for allegedly disrupting the event. The House members were charged with disorderly conduct and obstructing justice.