Kansas officials urge motorists to watch for deer
 Kansas officials are urging motorists to watch for deer on the roads as the hunting season begins. The Kansas Department of Transportation (KDOT) is reminding drivers to slow down and look for deer, especially in rural areas. Deer are a major cause of traffic accidents in the state, and KDOT wants to reduce the number of collisions. Drivers should be especially cautious during dawn and dusk, when deer are most active. KDOT is also reminding drivers to avoid using cell phones while driving, as this can distract them from the road. For more information, visit the KDOT website at www.kdot.gov.
