Kansas officials urge motorists to watch for deer
 Kansas Department of Transportation (KDOT) officials are urging motorists to be extra cautious on the roads during the fall season. Deer are a leading cause of traffic accidents in the state, and their numbers are expected to increase as the weather cools. KDOT is reminding drivers to slow down, especially at night, and to be alert for deer crossing the road. The department is also providing information on how to safely handle a deer encounter. Motorists should avoid swerving and should call the police if they are involved in a deer-related accident.
