Mental health care suffers drought season
Cuts cause 'unnecessary suffering, raises risk of crisis'
By Heidi Cohen
A 10-year-old boy with autism and a 12-year-old girl with bipolar disorder are among the many children in the Bay Area who are struggling to get the mental health care they need. The cuts have led to a "drought" of services, says a mental health professional. "We're seeing a lot of children who are in crisis because of the cuts," says a mental health professional. "We're seeing a lot of children who are in crisis because of the cuts."

Garden City College is considering becoming a tobacco-free campus. The college is currently in the process of conducting a survey to determine the level of support for a tobacco-free campus. The survey will be completed by the end of the year. The college is committed to providing a safe and healthy environment for all students and faculty.

2 juveniles charged in Fla. after bullied 12-year-old girl's suicide
Two juveniles have been charged in Florida after a 12-year-old girl's suicide. The girl, who was bullied, had written a suicide note that mentioned the two juveniles. The juveniles are currently in custody and are facing charges of child abuse and neglect. The case is currently being investigated by the Florida Department of Children and Families.

Police Chief says...
The police chief has announced that the department is implementing a new policy regarding the use of force. The policy will require officers to use the least amount of force necessary to resolve a situation. The policy is intended to protect the rights of all citizens and to ensure the safety of the community.
