Building relationships with Bright Futures
Bright Futures aims to connect community schools
By Mark C. Collins
By 10 years from now, a new wave of Bright Futures schools is likely to be connecting to the community. The state's Bright Futures program is expanding to include community schools, which are designed to provide a more holistic approach to education. The program is currently in its pilot phase, but it is expected to be fully implemented by 2015. The program is designed to provide a more holistic approach to education, focusing on the needs of the community as a whole, rather than just the individual student. This approach is expected to lead to better outcomes for students, particularly in underserved areas. The program is currently in its pilot phase, but it is expected to be fully implemented by 2015.
