Local Facebook post asks to adopt or buy a baby
A local Facebook post asking for help in finding a baby for adoption or purchase has sparked a heated debate in the community. The post, which was posted by a user named 'Baby for Sale', stated that the user had a baby for sale and was looking for someone to take care of it. The post was quickly removed by Facebook, but it had already spread to other social media platforms. The community is divided on whether it is appropriate to buy or sell babies, with some arguing that it is a form of human trafficking and others arguing that it is a way to help families in need.

Lawyers seek dismissal of Kansas murder charge
A Kansas man's lawyers are seeking the dismissal of a murder charge against him. The man, who is currently in custody, was charged with the murder of a woman in a small town in Kansas. The lawyers argue that the evidence against their client is circumstantial and that there are reasonable doubts about his guilt. They are asking the court to grant a writ of habeas corpus to free their client from custody.

Maybe Nov. 30 before healthcare.gov is fixed
The Obama administration says it may not be able to launch the new health care website, healthcare.gov, until after Nov. 30. The website is intended to allow Americans to compare health insurance plans and purchase them online. However, the website has been plagued with technical problems since it was first launched. The administration is working to fix these problems as quickly as possible, but it is unclear when the website will be ready for use.

Kan. woman dies after vehicle stalls on interstate
A Kansas woman died after her vehicle stalled on an interstate highway. The woman was driving on Interstate 70 near Lawrence, Kansas, when her car suddenly stopped. She was alone in the car and was unable to get out. A passerby noticed the car and called the police. The police arrived and found the woman dead in the car. The cause of the death is still under investigation.

Food stamps, milk prices on table in farm talks
Farmers and food processors are meeting to discuss issues related to food stamps and milk prices. The meeting is being held in Kansas and is attended by representatives from both groups. The farmers are concerned about the impact of food stamps on the market for their products, while the food processors are concerned about the impact of milk prices on their business. The meeting is expected to be a productive one, with both groups agreeing to work together to find solutions to these issues.
