Philly officer delivers baby in back seat of taxi
A Philadelphia police officer delivered a baby in the back seat of a taxi on Saturday night. The officer, who was on duty in the city's Center City area, noticed a pregnant woman in distress and acted quickly to get her to a hospital. The baby was born safely and the mother and child are now in good health.

Many exchange health plans exclude top hospitals
A new study has found that many health exchange plans do not cover care at some of the nation's top hospitals. The study, conducted by the Kaiser Family Foundation, found that 40 percent of exchange plans do not cover care at one or more of the top 100 hospitals in the country. This is a concern because these hospitals are often the best places to get care for complex or chronic conditions.
