City approves new plan allowing city staff to also have concealed-carry rights

Monday night on a crowded highway, a Las Vegas cab driver found a $300,000 cash hidden in the back seat of his taxi. The driver, who is a member of the Las Vegas Taxi Drivers Association, discovered the cash while driving on the Strip. The cash was hidden in a bag in the back seat of the taxi. The driver turned the cash over to the police, who are investigating the source of the money.

The city council has approved a new plan that would allow city staff to also have concealed-carry rights. The plan is part of a larger effort to improve public safety in the city. The council members voted in favor of the plan, which would allow city staff to carry concealed firearms on duty. The plan is expected to be implemented in the near future.
