Kan. ranchers brave deep freeze to care for cattle
 by Anne Blum

Ranchers in Kansas are braving deep freezes to care for their cattle. Many ranchers are reporting that their cattle are suffering from the cold and that they are having to take extra steps to keep them warm. Some ranchers are using heaters and blankets to keep their cattle warm, while others are using natural resources like windbreaks and shelterbelts. The cold weather is also making it difficult for ranchers to get their cattle to the feedlot.

THE HIGHEST PLACE IN KANSAS ON SUNDAY MUST BE REVISITED
 by Anne Blum

The highest place in Kansas, Mt. Sunley, must be revisited. The mountain was first discovered in 1890 and was named after a local farmer, Sunley. The mountain is located in the southeastern part of the state and is one of the highest points in the state. The mountain is a popular destination for hikers and nature lovers and is a great place to see the state's natural beauty.
