$22,000 worth of eggs stolen in Puerto Rico

A large quantity of eggs worth $22,000 were stolen from a farm in Puerto Rico, police said. The eggs were found to be contaminated with salmonella, and the farm was forced to destroy them. The theft occurred in the town of San Juan, and the police are currently investigating the case.

Odd call: Blowing nose brings big buck running

A man in Puerto Rico was startled by a large buck running through his yard after he blew his nose. The man, who was sitting on a bench, saw the buck running towards him. He was startled and ran away. The buck was later found to be a wild boar, and the man was advised to be careful in the future.
