Ohama running out of reasons to reject Keystone XL
By Chris Gossard
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama is running out of reasons to reject the Keystone XL pipeline, a senior administration official said Saturday.

The White House has been accused of changing its position on the pipeline, which would transport oil from the Canadian province of Alberta to the Gulf Coast. Obama initially said the pipeline was not in the national interest, but later said it was in the interest of the United States.

The official said the administration is now looking for a way to approve the pipeline. The pipeline is expected to be approved by the end of the year.
