National Beef to shut California plant, cites tight cattle supply

Additional processing could be seen locally

National Beef
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
NATIONAL BEEF CO. is shutting its California plant because of a tight cattle supply, the company says. The plant, which produces ground beef, is located in Colton, Calif. The company says it will shut the plant by the end of the month. The company says it will continue to process cattle from the area, but it will not be able to process as much as it used to. The company says it will be looking for other ways to process the cattle, but it is not sure when that will happen.
