Woody Allen's allies cast doubt on sexual abuse claims

Woody Allen's allies cast doubt on sexual abuse claims

By AP Wire

NEW YORK (AP) — Woody Allen's allies on Monday cast doubt on the sexual abuse claims of a woman who says she was sexually abused by the filmmaker when she was 13 years old.

The woman, who is now 47, says she was sexually abused by Allen in 1972, when she was 13 years old. She says she was sexually abused by Allen in 1972, when she was 13 years old. She says she was sexually abused by Allen in 1972, when she was 13 years old.

Allen's allies, including his lawyer and several friends, said they were shocked by the woman's claims. They said they had never heard of the woman before and that she was making up the story.

The woman's lawyer, however, said she was a victim of sexual abuse and that she was seeking justice. She said she was sexually abused by Allen in 1972, when she was 13 years old. She says she was sexually abused by Allen in 1972, when she was 13 years old.

Nothing controversial in Super Bowl ads

Nothing controversial in Super Bowl ads

By AP Wire

NEW YORK (AP) — Many Super Bowl ads are so funny and clever, they're almost irresistible. But one ad, featuring a dog, has caused a stir.

The ad, which aired during the Super Bowl, featured a dog named "Lola" who was being held by a woman. The dog was looking up at the woman with a sad expression. The ad was for a pet insurance company.

Some people have criticized the ad, saying it was too sad and that it was exploiting the dog. However, others have praised the ad, saying it was a touching and powerful message.

The ad's creator, a pet insurance company, said they were proud of the ad and that it was a true story. They said they were proud of the ad and that it was a true story.
