Gay marriage response

It's not just the religious community that's reacting to the Supreme Court's decision on gay marriage. The gay community is also reacting. Some are celebrating, while others are disappointed. The decision is a landmark moment in the fight for equality, but it also raises questions about the future of marriage and the role of the government in defining it.

Kansas senator outraises GOP primary challenger

Sen. Tim Wainwright has raised more money for his re-election campaign than his GOP primary challenger, Sen. Tommy V. Cotton. Wainwright has raised over $1 million, while Cotton has raised just over $500,000. This is a significant lead for Wainwright, who is currently leading in the polls.

Spring enrollment is up at college

College enrollment is up for the second year in a row. According to the National Education Policy Institute, total enrollment in U.S. colleges and universities increased by 1.1 percent in 2013. This is a positive sign for the higher education sector, which has been struggling with declining enrollment for several years.

Congressional analysts say health care law means fewer on job

Health care reform will mean fewer jobs, according to a new report from Congressional Budget Office (CBO) analysts. The report estimates that the Affordable Care Act will result in a net loss of 2.1 million jobs over the next 10 years. This is due to a combination of factors, including the elimination of certain tax breaks and the implementation of new regulations. The report also notes that the loss of jobs will be concentrated in the private sector, while the public sector will see a net gain of jobs.

The report also notes that the loss of jobs will be concentrated in the private sector, while the public sector will see a net gain of jobs. This is due to the fact that the public sector is largely exempt from the new regulations that are causing the job losses. The report also notes that the loss of jobs will be concentrated in the private sector, while the public sector will see a net gain of jobs.

Memories of the Beatles' US TV debut

It's hard to believe that it's been 50 years since the Beatles first performed on American television. Their appearance on "The Ed Sullivan Show" in 1964 was a landmark event that helped to introduce the band to a wider American audience. The Beatles' music and style were revolutionary, and their performance on Sullivan was a key moment in their career. Today, the Beatles remain one of the most popular and influential bands in the world.
