School, city to approve sales tax agreement today
By Jeff Korman

The City of Liberal (population 10,000) and the Liberal School District (population 10,000) are in the final stages of negotiating a sales tax agreement. The agreement would allow the city to collect a 1.5 percent sales tax on all taxable goods and services sold in the city. The school district would receive 1.25 percent of the total sales tax revenue, and the city would receive the remaining 0.25 percent. The agreement would also allow the city to collect a 1.5 percent sales tax on all taxable goods and services sold in the city. Giving blood, Giving life
By Jeff Korman

ABBY PAUL, a Liberal resident, is giving blood at the Coronado Museum. She is one of many people who are giving blood at the museum. The museum is a great place to give blood because it is a safe and convenient place to do so. The museum is also a great place to learn more about the history of the area.
