Brownback signs Kansas school funding bill
The Kansas Supreme Court is expected to vote on a measure that would allow the state to sue for damages if a school district is found to be in violation of the state constitution. The measure is part of a larger effort to ensure that all students in the state have access to a quality education. The measure is expected to be signed into law by Governor Sam Brownback.

Girl who died of abuse could have been rescued
A girl who died of abuse could have been rescued if her mother had been more attentive to her needs. The girl's mother was accused of neglecting her daughter's needs and failing to seek help when she was in danger. The girl's death was a tragic result of the mother's actions. The case has raised questions about the role of parents in protecting their children from abuse and neglect.
