Tornado shelters face dilemma with pet lovers

LEADERSHIP
A dilemma is facing pet owners in the area as they prepare for the possibility of a tornado. Many pet owners are reluctant to leave their pets in shelters, but they are also concerned about the safety of their pets in their homes.

As the weather service issues warnings, pet owners are faced with a difficult choice. Many pet owners are reluctant to leave their pets in shelters, but they are also concerned about the safety of their pets in their homes.

The dilemma is particularly acute for pet owners who live in areas that are prone to tornadoes. Many pet owners are reluctant to leave their pets in shelters, but they are also concerned about the safety of their pets in their homes.

2 men drop their federal lawsuit over Kansas voter ID law

LEADERSHIP
Two men have dropped their federal lawsuit over Kansas' voter ID law. The lawsuit was filed in federal court in Kansas City, Mo., and sought to block the law from taking effect.

The lawsuit was filed by two men who claimed that the law violated their constitutional rights. However, the men have now decided to drop the lawsuit.

The Kansas voter ID law requires voters to show a government-issued photo ID at the polls. The law was signed by Governor Sam Brownback in 2011 and has since been challenged in court.
