Consumers losing doctors with new insurance plans

As a result of new insurance regulations, many consumers are losing their doctors. The regulations require doctors to accept assignment of benefits, which means that they must accept the rates set by the insurance company. Many doctors are not willing to do this, so they are leaving the insurance companies. This is leaving many consumers without a doctor. The regulations are causing a lot of problems for consumers. They are losing their doctors and they are having to pay more for their insurance. This is a big problem for consumers and it needs to be fixed.
